The English Rose Tea Shop

CUSTOMER enters.

CUSTOMER:
Good Morning.

JASMINE:
Good morning. Welcome to the English Rose.

CUSTOMER:
Ah, thank you.

JASMINE:
May I help you?

CUSTOMER:
I d like to have some tea.

JASMINE:
Certainly. What would you like?

CUSTOMER:
Well, eh, how about a little Indian Chai?

JASMINE:
I'm afraid we're fresh out of Indian Chai.

CUSTOMER:
Oh never mind, how are you on Darjeeling First Flush?

JASMINE:
I'm afraid we never have that at the end of the week, ma am. We get it fresh on Monday.

CUSTOMER:
Too bad. No matter. Well, I ll have some Oolong Black Dragon then, please.

JASMINE:
Ah. It's been on order for two weeks. I was expecting it this morning.

CUSTOMER:
It's not my lucky day, is it? Er,
Ceylon Vithanakande Estate?

JASMINE:
Sorry, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Tropical Blend?

JASMINE:
Normally, yes. Today the van broke down.

CUSTOMER:
Ah. Gunpowder?

JASMINE:
Sorry.

CUSTOMER:
Typhoo?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Any Ceylon Petiagalla Estate, per chance?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Lemon Rooibos?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Raspberry?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Peach?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
English Breakfast?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Darjeeling Second Flush Poobong
Estate, Frost, Burnside Estate, Nilgiri?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

English Breakfast, perhaps?

JASMINE:

Ah! We have English Breakfast!

CUSTOMER:

You do! Excellent.

JASMINE:

Yes, ma am. It's, ah ..... it's a bit weak.

CUSTOMER:

Oh, I like it weak.

JASMINE:

Well, it's very weak, actually.

CUSTOMER:

No matter. Bring me the English
Breakfast. M-mmm!

JASMINE:

I think it's a bit weaker than you'll like it.

CUSTOMER:

I don't care how weak it is. Hand it over NOW.

JASMINE:

Oh .....

CUSTOMER:

What now?

JASMINE:

The cat's drunk it.

CUSTOMER:

Has he?

JASMINE:
She, ma am.

(pause)

CUSTOMER:
Peppermint?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Orange and Spice?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Iced Tea?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Lemonade?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
Irish Breakfast?

JASMINE:
No, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
You do have some tea, don t you?

JASMINE:
Of course, ma am. It's a tea shop, ma am. We've got .....

CUSTOMER:
No, no, don't tell me. I'm keen to guess.

JASMINE:
Fair enough.

CUSTOMER:
Er, JASMINE?

JASMINE:

Yes?

CUSTOMER:

Ah, well, I'll have some of that.

JASMINE:

Oh, I thought you were talking to me. JASMINE, that's my name.

(pause)

CUSTOMER:

Dragonwell?

JASMINE:

Ah, not as such.

CUSTOMER:

Er, White Darjeeling?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Apricot?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Apple Juice?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Blueberry?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Strawberry Kiwi?

JASMINE:

No.

CUSTOMER:

Czech sheep's milk?

JASMINE:
Not today, ma am, no.

(pause)

CUSTOMER:
Ah, how about Earl Grey?

JASMINE:
Well, we don't get much call for it around here, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Not much ca- It's the single most popular tea in the world!

JASMINE:
Not round here, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
And what is the most popular tea
round here?

JASMINE:
The English Rose Blend.

CUSTOMER:
Is it.

JASMINE:
Oh yes, ma am. It's staggeringly popular in Pleasanton, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Is it.

JASMINE:
It's our number-one best seller,
ma am.

CUSTOMER:
I see. Ah, English Rose, eh?

JASMINE:
Right, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
All right. Okay. Have you got any,
he asked expecting the answer no?

JASMINE:
I'll have a look, ma am .....
nnnnnnoooooooooooo.

CUSTOMER:
It's not much of a TEA shop, is it?

JASMINE:
Finest in the district, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Explain the logic underlying that conclusion, please.

JASMINE:
Well, it's so clean, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
It's certainly uncontaminated by tea.

JASMINE:
You haven't asked me about chamomile, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Is it worth it?

JASMINE:
Could be.

CUSTOMER:
Have you got any Chamomile?

JASMINE:
No.

CUSTOMER:
That figures. Predictable really, I suppose. It was an act of purest optimism to have posed the question in the first place. Tell me:

JASMINE:
Yes, ma am?

CUSTOMER:
Have you in fact got any tea here
at all?

JASMINE:
Yes, ma am.

CUSTOMER: Really?

(pause)

JASMINE:
No. Not really, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
You haven't.

JASMINE:
No, ma am, not a drop. I was deliberately wasting your time, ma am.

CUSTOMER:
Well, I ll NEVER come here again,
that s for sure.

JASMINE:
But wait- we do have a few things to offer you, such as goblets of Refreshing iced cold water,

MARGARITA pours the water

Warm lavender and rosemary scented hand towels to freshen up with,

ASHLEY serves the towels

A LAVISH serving of tea sandwiches, savories, scones and sweets prepared by our award-winning chef,

JOANN serves the food

A pedicure, nail CAROL kneels down to CUSTOMER s feet after close-up of Polish bottle.

And even a back massage.

NATALIE gives back massage

CUSTOMER:

WOW, with service like this, who needs tea? Aaaahhh, keep it up A little lower and to the left please yes, that s it.

(FINAL SCENE: AT THE FRONT DOOR)

CUSTOMER:

Thanks so much. It was wonderful.
Goodbye.

(LATER FILM TO ADD IN:)

BARBARA;

(coming out of the kitchen)

Did anyone remember to offer her the featured tea?
